

WORKSHEET

Session on Capacities for Integrating Environment in National Planning and Budgetary Processes

INTRODUCTION

The primary objective of this session is to identify critical capacities that need to be developed so that key country systems such as the “national planning process” and the “national budgetary process” play their due role in helping a country to achieve its national environmental goals. In addition, this session provides an opportunity to discuss good examples of capacity development for integrating environment in those two processes and to discuss best ways to develop those capacities.

This worksheet has been designed to assist participants in the session to prepare for it and to allow the session organisers’ to benefit from their expertise.

We encourage you to fill this worksheet in advance of the session, as this may assist you in making a more informed contribution during the group discussion. If you haven’t had an opportunity to do so, you could fill it during the group discussion. In any case, we kindly ask you to return it to the session organisers at the end of the session.

PRIORITIES – Please identify below what you consider to be the top five priorities in terms of capacities that need to be developed for making planning or budgetary processes (delete as appropriate) contribute more to the achievement of national environmental goals

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.

GOOD EXAMPLE – Please describe below a good example of capacity development for making planning or budgetary processes (delete as appropriate) contribute more to the achievement of national environmental goals

HOW TO – Please discuss below what you consider should be the key elements of a strategy or initiative aimed at developing the priority capacities identified above.

IDENTIFY YOURSELF – Please provide below your name and contact details, so that the organisers can eventually follow up with you for further details on your contribution.